

How to read the daily schedule

Date	Day in rotation	America: A Narrative History	Document Reader	History Now	Other	Essay Due Dates
------	-----------------	------------------------------	-----------------	-------------	-------	-----------------

The daily schedule has the headings listed above. The assignment listed next to the date and day in the rotation is what is due for class on THAT DAY.

America: A Narrative History – the textbook. Exam dates will be posted in this column as well. Each night you will have about 9-10 pages of text to read. I have accounted for maps and pictures when assigning the reading.

Document Reader – in Online Course Reserve. You do not need to read the document for class that day. The document referenced is related to the textbook reading for that day. The documents will be used by you when you write your essay from the History Now readings. See the syllabus for more information on those assignments.

History Now – A reader in Course Documents on my website

Other – readings found in other readers in the library's Online Course Reserve or under Course Documents on my website

Essay Due Dates - The date that essays are due. See the syllabus for details on when assignments are due and the penalties for late submissions.

PLAN AHEAD! You have all reading and essay assignments for the year. The only deadlines not listed here are those pertaining to the research paper. That information is listed separately on my website. See me with questions sooner rather than later. Claiming you were confused by the daily schedule is not an acceptable excuse. Learning to manage a course is one of our goals.
