

Leo's Great Escape

One autumn day in a zoo, there was a lion named Leo and a zookeeper. The lion was hurt and was brought into the zoo. He was all better now, and it was his day to go free. As the zookeeper was going to the den to let the lion free, he tripped over a rock and lost the key that opens the den in a big pile of leaves. He searched the pile and couldn't find the key. So he got a metal detector and could not find it at first. After hours of looking, he finally found it. He found it under a leaf and let the lion out even though it was dark. They took the lion to a place where he could roam freely and safely. The lesson of this story is if you keep trying, you will succeed.
