

Max's Broken Ball

One spring day Max went to a baseball store. Max bought the ball with his penny. When he gets home he finds out that the ball is broken. He finds a pencil and writes a letter to the store manager. Then when he is ready to send the letter he finds out that he doesn't have a stamp. He searches his whole house to find it. Eventually he finds a stamp and sends the letter. It starts raining so he can't send the letter, and he can't play with the ball. In his anger he throws the broken ball in the bush. He walks over there to get it back, and he finds an old ball that wasn't broken. Then when he was going to pick it up his neighbor's dog takes it and runs away. He calls his neighbor to call his dog in to get the ball. Max's neighbor gets the ball and gives it to Max. It stops raining, and he invites his neighbor and his friends to play a baseball game.
