

Steve and Thomas Play Basketball

One day, Steve the Scarecrow and Thomas the Turtle won a free trip to Disney World. They won it through the radio. Steve and Thomas were so excited; they only packed one granola bar when they packed. The taxi showed up and drove them to the airport. They went on a private plane, which was part of the prize. When they landed, they remembered they forgot most of their money. Because of that, they had to walk to the hotel.

When they got to the hotel Thomas picked up the granola bar and almost ate it. Then Steve said, "Wait, that's mine." Thomas said, "Since we both want it, we should have a contest." Steve exclaimed, "Let's have a basketball game to see who gets the granola bar."

They walked down to Disney's basketball court. Next, they agreed that the first person to ten points wins. Thomas got the first point, but Steve pulled ahead. Drip, drip, drip. It started raining! Thomas could swim to the ball and was much faster now. Thomas just scored his tenth point. Steve was upset. But Thomas did something unexpected; he split the granola bar in half and gave the bigger half to Steve.
