There was a guy. He was a spoon, that wanted to become the Philly Phanatic. While, he was at a football game he ran into the Philly Phanatic. Because he ran into the Phanatic, the Phanatic threw a football at him. After, he got hit he erased his idea of becoming the Phantic to being a football for the Eagles. Later, the spoon went to go to talk to the Eagles' manager.

"I want to become a football for the team." the spoon said pleading.

"We already have a football for the team." replied the manger. The spoon then left crying of his disappointment and went home. While he was home the phone rang. When he went to pick up the phone the Eagles' manger was on the other line.

"Congratulations! You got the position the other football quit." said the manager.

"Thank you so much!" thanked the spoon and hung up. The spoon was filled with so much joy he has to jump for joy.
