

Mrs. Dill's
Homework
Policy

Your child will be responsible for returning their homework. Please help your child develop the skill of being responsible by checking their homework in a timely manner. Give the homework back to your child. They should be responsible for putting it in their backpack and getting it to school. However, being a mom myself, I do realize there will be times they forget. That is why I have a "DILLY OF A JOB" policy. Each child is given a set of green strike one, yellow strike two and red strike three cards. If a student forgets their homework I will send home the appropriate card for you to fill out, sign and return. The child will bring me their homework the next day. If your child has a "strike" card, there is no penalty for the missed assignment. The children will be given three strikes before their math grade is affected by delinquent homework. After a child has used their third strike card, points will be deducted from their math grade. Children who maintain unused strike cards will be rewarded at the end of each grading period.

I look forward to working together to bring out the best potential in your child.
